

Michigan Math Club

Thursday at 4pm in the Commons

Free Pizza and Pop

Great Balls of Paper:

a hands-on study of curvature & shape

Edmund Harriss

16 April 2015

We will use paper that hook together to make balls. By considering the angles of triangles we will get a grasp on how curvature can be studied just with properties of the surface. We might wander into many other areas like polyhedra and graph theory so come prepared to have a serious play with mathematics!