Say we fix a triangle ABC, and pick points X, Y, Z on each of its three sides. When is the perimeter of XYZ minimized? It turns out that this happens exactly when X, Y, Z are the feet of the three altitudes.

In this talk, we shall explore the wonderful world of reflections and uncover an elegant solution to this problem, which will lead us to explore a recurring idea in studying billiard trajectories.